Dobie Hall of Honor inductees named

Brig. Gen. Edmund Walker, chief of operations for NATO forces in Afghanistan, is one of 10 Dobie High School graduates, including PavPal co-founder Ken Howerv and two-time Olympic gold-medalist Christa Williams, chosen for induction in the school's new Hall of Honor.

Former teacher Richard Golenko and community volunteers Gilbert Aguilar and the Rev. Emory Gadd complete the list of 13 individuals who will be honored in an inaugural ceremony on March 1 at the school.

The induction ceremony will begin at 7 p.m. and is open to the public.

Sageglen house catches fire

A house caught fire the morning of Wednesday, Jan. 30. in the 11600 block of Sagelink

Circle in the Sageglen subdivision. While firefighters initially believed the blaze was caused by the home's gas water heater, arson investigators were called to the scene to determine the exact cause. SVFD was assisted by the Pearland and Forest Bend fire departments

Williams, a West Point graduate and Army captain, was killed in a training accident in 1995. He was honored as Mr. J. Frank Dobie as a senior

Other alumni slated for induction are South Belt physician Dr. Mary Campbell-Fox; Chris Connealy, fire marshal for the state of Texas; Dr. Dina Jackson-Giesler, a leader in the field of cosmetic dentistry; Dr. Mark Chassay, a longtime team physician for the University of Texas; and Bobby Burton, a college football recruiting expert and sports publishing entrepreneur.

We are extremely excited about this inaugural class of inductees," said Dobie Principal Franklin Moses. "Their great accomplishments send a strong message to our current students that they, too, can go out and make a significant impact in their community and for their country.

Moses said the concept for the Hall of Honor was first developed by his predecessor, Steve Jamail, who retired as principal a year ago. A committee was formed to plan the project, consider nominations and choose inductees.

Additional inductees will be selected on an annual basis, Moses said, with consideration given to esteemed alumni, community volunteers and former faculty and staff.

"Mr. Jamail and I both felt that the recognition of the alumni was well deserved, and the inclusion of teachers and volunteers was essential." Moses said. "Without great teachers and volunteers over the years, Dobie would not be the flagship school that it currently is in Pasadena Promoted to brigadier general in 2010, he re-Independent School District." Special election results counted Garcia, Alvarado headed to runoff

By James Bolen

The Jan. 26 special election to fill the state Senate District 6 seat formerly held by the late Mario Gallegos will head to a runoff between former Harris County Commissioner Sylvia Garcia and state Rep. Carol Alvarado.

Garcia received 7,416 votes, roughly 45.4 percent of the ballots cast, while Alvarado received 6,803, about 41.6 percent.

Republican R.W. Bray, who lost to the deceased Gallegos in November's general election, received about 1,000 votes, or 6.2 percent.

Because none of the eight candidates received more than 50 percent of the vote, the election will now head to a runoff, which should take place in either late February or early March, depending on when Gov. Rick Perry sets the date.

Harris County election officials have 10 days to canvass Election Day results. Once complete, Perry's office has an additional 14 days to complete a second canvass. After the governor completes his canvass, he has five days to order the runoff election. The runoff date must be within 12 and 25 days of its being ordered and must take place on a Tuesday or a Saturday. As with most special elections, turnout was relatively low. Of the approximately 292,000 eligible District 6 voters, fewer than 16,000, about 5.6 percent, cast their ballots.

If Alvarado should win the runoff, a second special election would need to be called to fill her vacated House seat.

Also running for the District 6 seat were Democrats Joaquin Martinez and Susan Delgado, Republican Dorothy Olmos, Independent Rodolfo Rudy" Reyes and Green Party candidate Maria

City launches new 311 app

Parker joined the City of Houston's 311 Help & Info to launch the all-new 311 smartphone application.

Randy Corliss and homeowner Jose Alcala.

The smartphone app is the newest addition to 311's entirely new design focused on maximizing citizen engagement.

"I am excited to join 311 today to announce the redesigned 311 Help & Info," said Parker. The old 311 was inefficient and failed to meet Houston's needs. The new 311 is a completely transformed entity which places focus exactly where it should be – on the customer. Today, Houstonians can reach 311 through a variety of channels that are convenient and easy to use.

The City of Houston launched the 311 Houston Service Helpline in August 2001 as a telephone helpline, and the technology backbone that ran the system became rigid and inflexible over time. Now, 311 Help & Info users are able to submit service requests via the new smartphone app, the redesigned website, email or by calling the 24/7 call center. The new 311 system is more flexible, 311 empowers citizens to join the city's effort to improve the community by making it easy for them to report issues that need to be resolved.

"I am so proud of where 311 is today and look forward to where it's going in the future," said Frank Carmody, who oversees 311 Help & Info. "We want to hear from Houston's citizens, and we are working to create as many avenues as on their terms – when they want, how they want, and with whom they want."

Prior to 311's transformation, the 311 call center provided telephone service request and information service 18 hours a day, seven days a week. Due to budget-required layoffs in FY2012, 311 had to stop offering service on the weekends. As of August 15, 2012, 311 Help & Info launched 24 hour a day, seven day a week service. Additionally, 311 installed a labor model that more closely matches the demands of Houstonians. Furthermore, the service extension was implemented at an operating cost to the city of $600,000 less per year than the former 311 call center model.

In addition to expanded call-center hours and the new smartphone app. 311's redesigned website, www.Houston311.org, enables Houstonians to easily submit a request for service online. For example, the 311 received only 2,144 hits in January 2011. In January 2013, following its redesign, the website received more than 13,485 hits. convenient, efficient and customer-focused than ever in Houston's history. Additionally, the new interactive mapping tool that allows Houstonians to track the progress of their request and view other requests in the area.

"The work that went into building these new customer tools really epitomizes the city's approach to customer service," said Parker. "A cross-functional team comprised of executives from my office, the Public Works and Engineer-Continued on Page 2A

Heavy trash maps cause confusion

While the City of Houston's new heavy trash pickup schedule, implemented this past November, was intended to simplify things, it has had the converse effect of confusing many South Belt residents, as the community is no longer divided by Beltway 8 as it was before. Most South Belt residents live in Zone 9 (pictured above in green) and now have their pickup dates on the second Thursday of the month. Residents living north of Fuqua and west of the Gulf Freeway (shown above in blue Zone 10) now have their dates on the second Friday of the month, and residents living north of Beltway 8 and east of the Gulf Freeway (pictured above in lavender Zone 7) now have their dates on the second Tuesday of the month. "In addition to the CAFR award, San Jacinto College also earned the Distinguished Budget award, and "This achievement is the the Popular Annual Financial sue and perfect each year.

The college's fiscal affairs team submitted the comreport for the year ending Aug. 31, 2011, for consideration for the 2010-2011 CAFR award. The report was reviewed and scored against well as independent reviewers who work in public-sector financial reporting.

The GFOA serves state and local governments by enhancing and promoting the financial management of governmental administration for public benefit by identifyestablished quality criteria ing and developing financial by selected members of the policies and best practices.

fiscal year 2011-2012 "I am extremely proud of our financial services team." commented Kenneth Lynn, vice chancellor of fiscal affairs for the college. "GFOA, the acknowledged beacon of excellence in governmental financial management, has developed three award categories that recognize excellence. The San Jacinto College financial team has demonstrated their professionalism by earning these prestigious awards multiple times – the CAFR award for five consecutive years, the budget award for four consecutive years, and the new PAFR award for two consecutive years."

Lynn stated that as far as he knows, San Jacinto College is the only community college in Texas that holds all three GFOA excellence awards for the same year (2010-2011). "To me, that indicates world-class standards in financial operations," he added. "I congratulate our team for its dedication and commitment to excellence in all aspects of financial accounting and reporting."

Solo art exhibit Feb. 2 for local artist Ehman

Local artist Tricia Ehman stands beside one of her drawings that has been juried and has been on display at seum in League City will host an opening reception for a solo art exhibit by Tricia Ehman on Feb. 2, from 1 to 4 p.m. The exhibit will continue Ehman and her husband, Tom, attend Sagemont Church and have been South Belt residents since 1988. Their three children graduated from Dobie High School. and she was chairwoman of Precinct 654.

Ehman has painted as a profession since 1992 while also working as a professional violinist and teacher until 1998. She worked for Thomas Kinkade as a master apprentice (highlighter) for five ears and was a local Thomas Kinkade gallery director for nine months, when the gallery closed. Ehman stated, "My Christian faith is the most important aspect of who I am and matters to the way I paint.'

She is a transplant from Michigan since 1988. "My art style has been called Roman-tic Realism and uplifting, but I do experiment in my technique with oils and acrylics. I work to depict the beauty of God's creation when painting horses and landscapes. In a horse portrait I try to capture that horse's expression and since moving to the country when she was 3. She was involved in art classes all the way into college. "My mother, an artist and art teacher, is ic; my husband is my biggest supporter."

Ehman attended Michigan State University for three years, majoring in English with an emphasis in violin. "I took some art classes but did not concentrate on it." A pro-fessional violinist since the early 1970s, she gave private violin lessons in the South Belt until 1998. In the early 1990s, she took up painting and tried her hand at horse portrait T-shirts, murals and backdrops for a local dance studio. "Finally, I started concentrating on my true joy, horse portraits on canvas."

In 2000, Ehman initiated her art business, Heavenly Hoofbeats, and applied to Media Arts, to work as a master apprentice for artist Thomas Kinkade. In 2001, she was chosen as one of 32 artists to travel nation-wide hosting Kinkade highlighting events at various art galleries. ued painting and in 2003 had the honor of showing three paintings in his Monterey, Calif., museum."

Her work has also been displayed in several shows and galleries in Texas and Canada. Eight years ago, Ehman incurred an injury that set her back a couple of years, but she eventually was able to accept commissions and exhibit her work again.

Ehman is a member of the National Society of Artists and National Association of Professional Women. She also takes care of family. represents Women for Life International and Endeavour Forum at the UN, teaches Abortion Recovery Bible study, attends women's Bible study courses, enjoys reading and plays with her dog. Ehman added, "I have a full life and am thankful to God

CCC Theatre presents Plaza Suite

Clear Creek Community Plaza Hotel. Theatre, 18091 Upper Bay Road in Nassau Bay, will present the romantic comedy Plaza Suite, by Neil Simon, running Feb 22 through March 10, at 8 p.m. on Fridays and Saturdays, and 2:30 p.m. on Sundays.

Hilarity abounds in this portrait of three couples suc-cessively occupying the same suite at the swanky New York

A suburban couple take the suite while their house is being painted and it turns out to be the one in which they honeymooned 23 (or was it 24?) years before. And was yesterday the anniversary, or is it today?

This wry tale of a marriage in tatters is followed by the exploits of a Hollywood producer who, after three marriages, is looking for to come out of that bathroon fresh fields.

He calls a childhood sweetheart, now a suburban housewife, for a little 'romantic' diversion. Over the years she has idolized him from afar and is now more than the match he bargained for.

The last couple is a mother and father fighting about the best way to get their daughter down to her wedding guests waiting in the ballroom with Mother yelling, "I want you and get married!

SB's Ortiz, hoops team win tourney

South Belt area resident Samantha Ortiz turned in an outstanding performance while helping her St. Helen's girls' basket-ball team take first place at the St. Pius V tournament. Ortiz, 10, is a fifth-grade student at St Helen's Catholic School. She is the daughter of Julian and Frances Ortiz, and her sister attends Incarnate Word Academy.

Longhorn baseball to scrimmage GP

At left, junior center fielder Travarus Ansley is back for his second full varsity season as a revamped Dobie High School varsity baseball team prepares for the 2013 season. In 2012, the Longhorns had a disappointing fourth-place finish during the regular season but then defeated District 21-5A champion North Shore in the bidistrict playoff round. The team subsequently lost in the area round for the second straight season Despite the loss of three starting pitchers, three infielders and a pair of outfielders after the 2012 season, head coach Miguel Torres and his players have high hopes for the season. It all starts Monday, Feb. 4 as the Longhorns scrimmage Galena Park at 4 p.m. The varsity action begins at 4 p.m.
