Causes of two deaths undetermined

After several weeks, the causes of two recent South Belt deaths have yet to be determined, according to medical examiners.

Alexander

Roughly three months after the death of Chris- topher Alexander, the Harris County Institute of Forensic Sciences has yet to determine what killed the man.

Alexander was found unresponsive at an apartment complex located at 1460 Hollis near Edgewood and the Gulf Freeway on Tuesday, April 11. Police and paramedics responded to the call around 10:45 a.m. after receiving reports of the man collapsing after having an alteration with another man.

Alexander was transported to Memorial Hermann Southwest Hospital, where he was later pronounced dead.

According to Medical Examiner, Alexander appears to be an unknown substance prior to the call.

The forensic was detained at the scene but was questioned and released.

Hernandez named South Belt’s Teacher of the Year

At a recent special-called meeting, the Pasadena Independent School District Board of Trustees approved the nomination of Joe Hernandez to serve as principal at Stuchbery Elementary School.

"I am excited to become a part of the Stuch- bery Stallion Family," Hernandez said. "I am blessed at the opportunity to become a part of the great things happening in the South Belt commu- nity."

Hernandez has served the school district for 15 years. He began his career as a bilingual science teacher at Schmid Elementary School from 2004 to 2006. He continued to teach bilingual and special education classes at Keller Middle School until 2010. In 2010, Hernandez took on the role of assistant principal at Janice Elementary.

"We are proud to announce the selection of Joe for this prestigious honor," said Superintendent Dr. José Parés. "He is a shining example of the kind of leader we strive to develop at Stuchbery."

Hernandez earned a bachelor’s degree from the University of Texas at Rio Grande Valley in arts education. He earned his educational leadership degree from Houston Baptist University.

Hernandez’s sister, Susanna – a former PISD teacher and librarian – is the owner of the Wig- gle Room in Paradise. A former South Bella- stond, Suzanne had a 1999 Dedalo gradu- ation.
New bill far better for a permanent solution

As the Mirror first reported, the City of Houston's pension system is in crisis. The City's pension plans are underfunded by over $2 billion. The City's actuaries recently reported that the underfunding is likely to increase by an additional $500 million by 2020. This is the first time that the City's actuaries have expressed such concern. The City's actuaries have also stated that the City's pension plans will be unable to pay out the full amount of the promised benefits to its retirees.

The biggest disappointment with the bill is that it does not propose a comprehensive solution to the City's pension crisis. The bill only proposes a temporary measure to pay out a portion of the promised benefits to its retirees. The bill does not address the root causes of the City's pension crisis, which include the City's failure to contribute enough money to its pension plans over the years, the City's underestimation of the cost of its pension plans, and the City's failure to implement reforms to reduce the cost of its pension plans.

The bill also fails to address the City's other financial challenges, such as the City's budget deficits, the City's debt obligations, and the City's failure to implement reforms to reduce the City's overall budget.

In my opinion, the only way to address the City's pension crisis is to implement a comprehensive reform plan that includes provisions for the City to contribute enough money to its pension plans, to implement reforms to reduce the cost of its pension plans, and to implement reforms to reduce the City's overall budget.

The bill is a step in the right direction, but it is not enough. The City needs to do more to address its pension crisis and its other financial challenges.

On Saturday, June 24, Texan Bank hosted an Inaugural Kidz Harbor event June 24 at the Super Bowl.

"It really helps to understand the kids and attend college. "I am grateful for the partnership has allowed us to provide our youth with a meaningful experience for the kids who are different in the 'Harbor Warrior Olympics.' "We are looking forward to this day and creating an experience that will never forget." Texan Bank selected Kidz Harbor to be one of the organizations hope to debut a men's event in March and April. The organization hopes to be a meaningful programming for Kidz Harbor youth for the year's end.

"We talk a lot about language, but the other part of that is with kids who are different," said McKenna Nickens. "I really love to imagine how two children connect and see that you can add to both and not just one.""

Corey Julks, selected by the Houston Astros in the 41st round of the 2016 draft, is now in Troy, New York, ready to make his debut in professional baseball.

Since receiving a call from an Astros scout June 13, Julks has had a whirlwind of a week. The Tri-City ValleyCats are his new team, and the University of Houston graduate is five years older than the rest of his senior class at Clear Brook High School, where he benefited from being part of a competitive program.

With the Pearland Little League team he played for during his senior season at Clear Brook, Corey Julks originally signed with Angelina College.

But Julks’ collegiate career wound up taking a different path largely due to a left-arm injury that forced him to miss most of the 2016 season. Julks was drafted by the Atlanta Braves in the 11th round of the 2016 Major League Baseball draft, but his arm injury forced him to pass on the offer.

When the Atlanta experiment was over, Julks wound up with the University of Arizona, but an elbow injury ended his season.

When Julks was drafted by the Houston Astros in the 41st round of the 2016 MLB First-Year Player Draft, he was suddenly one of the most-hyped shortstop prospects in the American League.

Juls By The Season
2015: Hit .332 while starting 54 of 55 games. Had 10 doubles, 9 homers, 45 RBIs.
2016: Hit .332 while starting 57 of 59 games. Had 12 doubles, 9 homers, 45 RBIs.

Julls' rise in the game.

While his University of Arizona career was cut short due to an injury, Julks has had a meteoric rise in the game. Despite being five years older than his senior class at Clear Brook High School, Julks has made a name for himself in professional baseball.

Weaver takes over San Jacinto College women’s basketball program

Weaver, who served the last two seasons as an assistant coach under Michael Madrid, helped to guide the team to a 20-9 record and its first appearance at the National Junior College Athletic Association Division I national tournament.

“I am excited for the opportunity to lead those young ladies and this program for one year,” said Weaver.

In addition to Weaver, assistant coaches Savannah Oss (Clear Brook teammate), Samantha Mc- clary (San Jac coach), Catarina Torres (sister), C.J. Torres (brother) and Reese Ruthwein (Clear Brook teammate) will be assisting Madrid.

Weaver said that Torres has contributed immediately.

“Torres said. “Once I realized that there was a chance for me, I was able to find McMurry. I’m so excited.”

Weaver earned her bachelor’s degree from TWU in mathematics and a minor in coaching.

For the 2014-2015 season, Weaver earned her first team All-District 24-6A and All-District Region XIV. She was also named the Pershing College Student-Athlete Award winner, which recognizes the top academic athlete in the graduating class.

Weaver then moved to Texas Woman’s University, where she was a member of the 2010-2011 Lone Star Conference champion team. Weaver is currently working with the student-athletes to prepare them for the next step in their journey both on and off the court.

“I am looking forward to watching our team compete. The group has already set such a high standard for the women’s basketball program and I am excited to see how they finish their careers here at San Jac,” said Weaver.
